ECTAA has long been calling for a less cumbersome and costly visa issuance policy to attract more visitors to Europe. The potential impact of a smarter visa policy on economic growth, in particular tourism, has long been recognized by major states. The EU has only started on this reflection with the Commission Communication published end of 2012 on the “Implementation and development of the common visa policy to spur growth in the EU”. DG Enterprise of the European Commission has taken up this matter and will shortly publish a study on the economic impact of short stay visa facilitation on the tourism industry and on the overall economies of EU Schengen countries. The study will also make recommendations of visa facilitation actions that can be taken within the frame of the existing visa code as well as modification of the code. The results of the study to a large extent echo the remarks and issues brought up by industry and tourism associations, such as ECTAA, in recent years.

*Christina RusseConsumer protection: Adoption of the package travel Directive proposal

After more than 4 years of debating forth and back, the Commission has finally adopted its legislative proposal revising the package travel Directive. The Secretariat has done a first preliminary review of the proposal, which will serve as a basis for the thorough analysis to be carried out after the summer break by the Legal and Tour Operators Committees as well as the Members.

Professional qualifications: 2 years professional experience will still be required for tourist guides

Agreement has been reached on the mutual recognition of professional qualifications Directive proposal. The major innovation of this Directive for the travel industry is the introduction of a European professional card. Unfortunately, the provision proposed by the Commission, that the requirement of 2 years professional experience should not apply when a service provider – such as a tourist guide - accompanies the service beneficiaries into a country other than the one where he is established, has not been retained.

Transport: Effectiveness of Directive 2003/59/EC regarding drivers of road vehicles

The Commission has launched a public consultation on the effectiveness of the Directive 2003/59/EC on the initial qualification and periodic training of drivers of certain road vehicles for the carriage of goods or passengers. This consultation might be of interested for coach operators who encounter difficulties in the recognition of their bus drivers' qualifications when travelling abroad. Members' comments are welcome until 20 September 2013.

Taxation: Tour operators relieved from accounting for VAT on coach transport through Germany

As of 1 October 2013, Germany will no longer apply the extended reverse charge to land-related B2B passenger transport carried out in Germany. Thus, tour operators, who buy in land-related transport services (e.g. coach travel) carried out in/through Germany will no longer have to register and account for VAT on those services in Germany, but instead the transport undertaking will be responsible for accounting for the VAT. This reduces substantially the fiscal burdens of tour operators organizing trips which include bought-in land-related passenger transport in/through Germany.
